Examples: Amira found a shell. She kept it. → She replaces Amira; it replaces shell.

How to teach: Say a sentence that repeats a name: “Jack said Jack lost Jack’s hat.” Help your child replace repeated names with he or his, and discuss who each pronoun means.

Examples: one book → two books
one box → two boxes
one baby → two babies.

How to teach: Use real objects: hold up one pencil and then several pencils. Say the noun out loud and write both versions. Compare a word ending in vowel + y (toy → toys) with consonant + y (city → cities).

How to teach: Create pairs of cards (foot/feet; person/people; goose/geese). Match the cards, say a sentence with each, and sort words into “changes” and “stays the same.”

This is the most interesting book on the shelf.

How to teach: Line up three spoons or pencils by size. Ask which is the longest, then switch their order. Highlight “the” before many superlatives.
